The Paul St. Martin Charitable Corporation Welcomes Dr. Sami F. Noujaim to Its Board of Directors

Attleboro, MA – The Paul St. Martin Charitable Corporation (PSMCC) is pleased to announce the addition of Dr. Sami F. Noujaim to its board of directors. Dr. Noujaim is a researcher at the University of Michigan Center for Arrhythmia Research. Dr. Noujaim’s joining of the board will help the corporation work towards its mission of funding cardiac research and enhancing the education of physicians on preventive cardiology.

Sudden cardiac death, which claimed the life of Paul St. Martin, is the cause of death of hundreds of thousands of Americans every year. Ventricular fibrillation – an arrhythmic cardiac electrical activity that impedes blood pumping by the heart – is a major cause of sudden cardiac death. Dr. Noujaim’s research focuses on understanding the molecular mechanisms of ventricular fibrillation.

Dr. Noujaim is a member of professional societies in the medical field, and has received several awards. He has published papers and given talks on ventricular fibrillation. Dr. Noujaim can be contacted at SNoujaim@paulstmartincharitablecorp.com.

Apply for Future Research Grant

Hospitals or educational institutions interested in applying for a preventive cardiology research grant from the corporation are encouraged to visit the PSMCC website to complete a grant application.

About the Paul St Martin Charitable Corporation

The Paul St. Martin Charitable Corporation, a 501(c)3 non-profit charitable organization, was founded in 2008 to raise awareness and funds to support the advancement of cardiac research and education focused on preventing heart disease. The non-profit honors the memory of Paul A. St. Martin who was a prominent friend and business colleague to many in the community of Newton, MA. He sadly passed away of a heart attack while doing one of his favorite things, running. He is remembered for his unbelievable sense of humor, love of sports and devotion to his family.
